

Vocabulary and terms - Constructor Overloading :

Name the following :

- a. A constructor that is created every time you make a class
- b. A constructor that takes parameters from the user.
- c. What feature of object oriented programming does constructor overloading use
- d. What are Non-static variables of the class called
- e. A method that is called every time you make an object

Name the following :

- a. George made a class called Calculator and wanted to make a constructor that takes three double values as parameters and sets them to 0. What should the constructor look like? What are these types of constructors called?
- b. A method that has the same name as that of the class.
- c. What Java keyword is used for a method that does not return any value.
- d. Ramesh felt that his program was getting too long and complex, so he decided to make a different class and call the methods of the class from the main method. What feature of Object Oriented Programming is this?